WELCOME TO THE NEW TEAM

Dear Members and supporters,

We are pleased to announce that we are the new management team at the Italian South African Chamber of Trade and Industries. We are proud to be part of one of the top 20 listed chambers in the world, and continue the positive legacy left by the former leadership.

We have a mix of skills that span from economics, finance, business and event management. Moreover, we both have experience in the private business sector in South Africa and in Italy and therefore we understand the challenges as well as the opportunities that entrepreneurs of SMEs face in both markets.

We are motivated to increase the value that is delivered to our esteemed members, working with them to support and promote their businesses and visibility, both locally and internationally.

Highlight

We are willing to engage with the Italian - South African Community from various angles, and we are looking forward to collaborate with other Institutions, that together with the Chamber, are part of the "Sistema Italia in South Africa". Especially the Italian Embassy, the Consulate, the Italian Trade Commission and all the other stakeholders.

We believe that Internationalization is the road to success for Italian SMEs, and with the support of the Italian Ministry of Economic Development, in partnership with key agencies for the promotion of bilateral cooperation, we are committed to deliver excellent services to support the Italian SMEs expansion plan into the Southern African markets.

Synergies between the South African and the Italian markets are found in sectors such as Energy, Engineering and Construction, Agriculture and Healthcare. The Chamber's role is to facilitate partnership creation.

We have a passion for the Made in Italy and promotion of Italian quality.

We look forward to meet all of our members and supporters personally over the next few months at one of our events such as the Aperilink on 27th June at the Maserati showroom in Bryanston.

A presto!

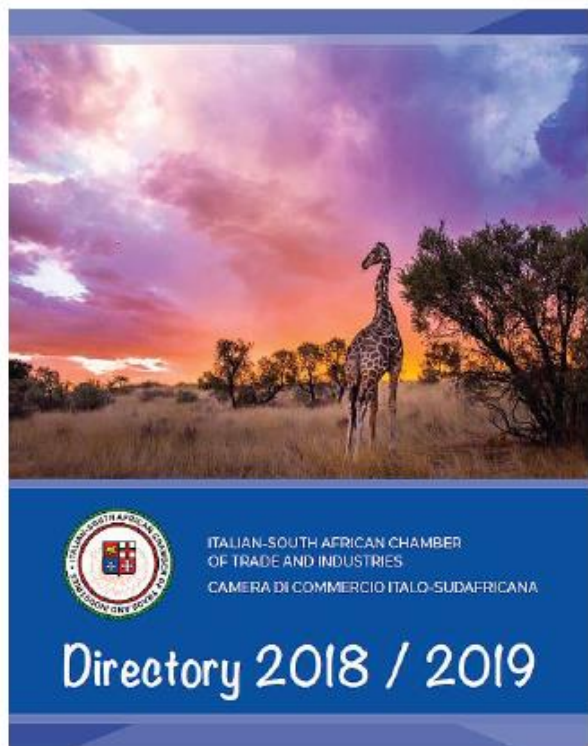

Pamina e Silvia

SECTOR INSIGHT

State-owned freight logistics utility Transnet has named a consortium led by black-empowerment group Southern Palace as the preferred bidder for a 20-year concession to build and operate a new R2.5-billion inland container terminal in southern Gauteng.

The public-private partnership, dubbed the Tambo Springs Intermodal Terminal, is expected to reach financial close by September, with sod turning currently set down for November.

Besides Southern Palace, which has holdings in various industrial companies such as Scaw, Genrec and Concor, the consortium includes Italian infrastructure group Ferrovie dello Stato Italiane, as technical partner, as well as local supply-chain company Makoya, as logistics and marketing partner.

The terminal will be developed on a 607 ha property near Vosloorus, in Ekurhuleni, which has been earmarked for development of a larger multi-modal logistics hub being promoted by the Tambo Springs Development Company.

About 60% of South Africa's import and exports flow through Gauteng and yearly container movement to and from the province is expected to grow to four-million TEUs by 2021, from three-million TEUs currently. The new terminal should, thus, ease pressure on Transnet's existing inland container terminal at City Deep.
